

I'm in haunted house and I'm scared
Something's coming down the stairs

The closet's in the dark
I can hear the ghost's bark

Maybe it's a fairy
But they are scary

It's Halloween and I can hear the noise
Candies are for girls and boys

One rainy fall evening, Edgar, a meat inspector from Scotland, was returning from his 6 hour shift. He was walking by the cemetery, then it occurred to him that something was behind him. He quickly turned around. There was tall grim statue behind him. He started walking backwards until he tripped on a broomstick. He looked up and got a better look at the gruesome creature. It was a tall human like creature. It had sharp cold weapon in one hand. Edgar got up and started running. But the second he turned around he was already dead. The human like creature stabbed him. He fell on the ground and what he saw was his best friend's face. Mitchell that died 4 years ago.

I came in through a wide wooden door slowly poking my head out. I was staring down a long hallway which was leading to a gigantic room. In it, was a tall skinny figure with a strange expression. I had a feeling that he was there for a bloody bad reason. I blinked once and he was gone. Just like that. I never saw him again, but i always wondered if maybe he would come back for me... And from that day on, i always had the feeling that he was watching me...

It was Halloween night. Everyone was preparing for the party that was being held in a abandoned house. The host of the party was a girl named Anna. She went to see how the house looked like. She liked it because it was spooky and perfect for the party. She went upstairs and heard someone laughing. She was terrified. She looked everywhere but she couldn't find the thing that was making the noise. She opened the wardrobe and saw a creepy doll without eyes with stitched up mouth. She was relieved for a moment and she went downstairs. She heard the laughter again and decided to check again the wardrobe. Behind the doll a leprechaun was hiding. He jumped out of the wardrobe and started chasing the girl. She caught her and bit her on the neck. She started laughing like a crazy person and turned into a leprechaun. All of the leprechauns decided to take over the world and turned this Halloween into a disaster.

